When asked what sets Nurenberg Paris apart from other personal injury firms, firm president David Paris says it's a combination of things: "Experience. Success. Compassion. Teamwork. And an unwavering commitment to our clients."

It's a formula that's worked for 84 years, and promises to continue long into the future.

EXPERIENCE Founded in 1928 in Cleveland, the firm has helped more than 75,000 injury clients and nearly one million class action clients. The firm has taken on numerous high-profile transportation disaster cases nationwide, and has earned a reputation as one of the premier plaintiff's firms in airplane crashes and other transportation disasters. Its attorneys also have a long history of success in the appellate courts, with published cases in Ohio and United States Supreme Courts.

SUCCESS The firm has achieved substantial settlements and verdicts for its clients, in medical malpractice cases, workplace injuries, motor vehicle collisions and transportation disasters, as well as other personal injury and wrongful death matters. The aviation department alone has recovered more than $300 million for clients throughout the United States.

ATTORNEYS Nurenberg Paris attorneys have earned the respect of lawyers and judges locally and nationwide. The firm is listed in Martindale-Hubbell's Bar Register of Preeminent Lawyers—an honor held only by law practices with an AV® rating. Its lawyers have been recognized in Ohio Super Lawyers® and Rising Stars each year since the nominations began. This year a record number of its lawyers have been selected, including David M. Paris, Thomas Mester, William S. Jacobson, Jamie R. Lebovitz, Jeffrey A. Leikin, Kathleen J. St. John, Jonathan D. Mester, Andrew R. Young and David A. Herman. Paris, who is in his sixth year of inclusion on the Top 100 Super Lawyers list, is a fellow in the International Academy of Trial Attorneys and has been included in The Best Lawyers in America since 2008.

TEAMWORK The firm's clients are its most important asset. To best serve them, teamwork is a must—not only among the lawyers, but through the dedication of its strong administrative and support staff who make client service a priority.

COMMITMENT Above all, dedication to their clients matters most. "We care deeply about our clients and will continue to go beyond what is expected to achieve the results they deserve," Paris says.

This attitude is shared by everyone at Nurenberg Paris. "We are proud of our past, but even more excited about our future," says firm vice president Lebovitz. "We have a great team of experienced attorneys, but we also have the up-and-comers who will carry on the tradition of compassion and drive to acquire full compensation for our clients—which is what this firm is all about."
